MOVE AFOOT TO CLIP WINGS OF LONE EAGLE

CONTROVERSY SMOULDERING IN CONGRESS

"THERE MUST BE PIONEERS TO SHOW THE WAY," SAYS LINDBERGH

WING-CLIPPING BASED ON FEAR FOR PERSONAL SAFETY IN TRAIL-BLAZING

By FOSTER EATON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 15.—A quiet controversy smouldered here today between the pioneering spirit of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and those who seek to curtail his future flying activities.

"There must be pioneers to show the way," the 'Lone Eagle' commented when told that a wing-clipping movement was afoot in high government circles, based on fear for his personal safety in trail-blazing flights.

There was a trace of an indication that Lindbergh felt "the opposition" didn't understand; there also was clear indication that he did not consider his recent good-will tours in the category of "stunts."

The controversy, which broke upon aviation circles here yesterday with the statement of Secretary of War Dwight F. Davis opposing 'jungle flights,' rapidly found echo in congress, where members talked of passing a resolution requesting Lindbergh to avoid hazardous flying.

"I have no comment to make until I hear personally from Secretary Davis," Lindbergh replied to an inquiry late yesterday following his return from a three-hour welcome-home flight over the city of St. Louis.

He was pressed for a more pointed answer, and finally said:

"I do not consider the flying I have done recently in the nature of 'stunt flying,' but rather as carefully planned ventures.

"I may do some more experimental flying later, but as a whole I do not consider aviation in the experimental stage.

"There must be pioneers to show the way when new methods of transportation are coming into use, and pioneering has its hazards.

"But it has been my observation that those who do the pioneering are the last to think of the danger."

It was obvious that the quiet, reticent youth who has risen in less than a year to a position of world prominence by his skill in daring flight, much rather preferred to speak of other things.

"I really am in retirement just now," he said, "and have no plans beyond the air-mail trip of next week, so for the present at least there is no danger."

Lindbergh today was to be the guest at a Chamber of Commerce luncheon. He was to be the only speaker on the program. More than 700 reservations already had been made for the luncheon.

For three hours yesterday he flew lazily, almost playfully over the city and river-front here displaying the maneuverability of his famous 'Spirit of St. Louis'—which safely carried him more than 40,000 miles since last May.

Six times he roared the plane low over the Mississippi river levees, where more than 60,000 public and private school children were massed and waved him a welcome home with miniature American flags. Later he swung out over the city's housetops in greeting to adult residents of St. Louis.

BITTER PERSONAL DEBATE IN SENATE

Washington, Feb. 15.—(U.P.)—Bitter personal debate aroused the senate to a fever pitch today as both sides in the power combine fight closed their arguments preparatory to a final vote upon the Walsh resolution for a senatorial inquiry into public utilities activities.

After Sen. Bruce, democrat, Maryland, had personally assailed Sen. Walsh of Montana and condemned the growing tendency of the senate to investigate everything under the sun, Sen. Dill, democrat, Washington, delivered a scathing attack upon the Wall street interests and the power trust.

2 YOUTHS TAKEN AFTER GUN FIGHT WITH DEPUTIES

St. Clarisville, O., Feb. 15.—(U.P.)—Captured after a gun battle with deputies, two youths were held here today for Lafayette, Ind., authorities as suspects in the reported kidnaping of John P. Grove and Wallace McClure, Lafayette deputy sheriffs.

Although they gave the names of Albert Jennings and Frank Fornes, the youths were believed by authorities to be John Burns and Samuel Baxter, who disappeared mysteriously with the officers while on the way from Lafayette to the Pendleton, Ind., reformatory.

2 WITNESSES CAN IDENTIFY MORE BONDS

SENATE TEAPOT DOME COMMITTEE GETS NOTIFICATION

SAY $75,000 OF LIBERTY BONDS CAN BE TRACED DOWN

Washington, Feb. 15.—(UP)—Two witnesses in New York notified the senate Teapot Dome committee that they can identify the $75,000 of liberty bonds sold by Senator T. Coleman Du Pont of Delaware to pay off a 1920 debt of the republican national committee, Chairman Nye announced today.

Nye said the serial numbers of the bonds indicated they were among the liberty bonds purchased by the Continental Trading Company from profits derived in the strange oil deal of 1921.

Joseph F. McMahon of Potter & Company and James Bernieri of C. F. Childs & Company, were the witnesses with whom the committee communicated. They will appear to testify at reopening of the hearing tomorrow.

McMahon will testify concerning the sale November 30, 1923, of $75,000 of three liberty bonds for $74,718, which was deposited to Du Pont's account, according to Nye.

Bernieri will testify, Nye said, that Childs & Company bought the bonds from Potter & Company and paid the $74,718 in cash.

COMPASS GOES 'BAD'; FLIER TAKES TO 'CHUTE'

Quantico, Va., Feb. 15.—(U.P.)—A sore back and stiff neck were the only discomforts today of Major Louis Milton Bourne, marine corps aviator, who late yesterday escaped death in fog banks by dropping 1,000 feet in a parachute and letting his Curtis pursuit plane wreck itself in a tree.

Bourne, who recently flew a huge marine transport plane to Nicaragua, was flying from Langley Field, Va., to Quantico when his compass was disarranged in an electrical storm.

Lost in fog and rain clouds, he several times found himself flying upside down, once while within a few feet of the Potomac river. He took to his parachute over Rigeley, Va., and his plane, left pilotless, was demolished.

PLANE IN TAIL SPIN; CAPT. MILLER KILLED BY FALL

Dayton, O., Feb. 15.—(U.P.)—Capt. Thomas H. Miller, post surgeon at Wilbur Wright field, was killed today when the training plane in which he was flying with Capt. Edward Laughlin went into a tail spin at a height of 300 feet and crashed.

Capt. Laughlin suffered slight injuries.

Hickman and Pal Facing New Charge of Murder

Thirty Years Ago Today, Maine Was Blown Up In Havana Harbor---Today, Memorial Services

WAR WITH SPAIN, AND CUBA GAINS HER LIBERATION

PRESIDENT MACHADO LEADS IN SOLEMN SERVICES AT MAINE MEMORIAL PARK

PATRIOTIC ASSOCIATIONS PARTICIPATE IN THE EXERCISES HELD TODAY

By ALFRED P. RECK
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Havana, Feb. 15. — Thirty years ago today, the steel hulk of a battleship rocked gently in the calm harbor waters of Havana. There was little to break the silence except the muffled tread of the deck watch's feet and the lap of the waves against the bow marked with the word "Maine."

Half a mile away, the lights of a city glistened and danced across the waters. To the stern was the outline of a grim fortress, dotted by the black snouts of guns. The moon was not yet above the horizon, but a myriad of stars twinkled overhead.

It was peace—there was no cause for alarm—on the deck of the ship the sentry walked his beat calmly without the slightest intimation of pending disaster. Below several hundred men were sleeping. Ashore others were making merry — wine glasses clinked and bright eyes of senoritas flashed at the trim officers from the American ship.

Then the city—half asleep and half awake with festivity — was aroused by a mighty roar. Water spouted high in the harbor. Where the lights danced merrily over the waves a minute before was foam-flecked wreckage and high, fast pulsing ripples.

Where the outline of the battleship stood was nothing but shattered masts. The silence was broken by shrieks. Two hundred and sixty American sailors were drowned.

There in the shadow of Morro Castle, in the Havana harbor, thirty years ago, on February 15, 1898, the battleship Maine was blown up, resulting in a war with Spain and the liberation of Cuba.

Today President Machado will lead in the memorial services in the newly completed Maine memorial park. Cubans and Americans alike will gather to pay tribute to a common historical tradition and ideal, before the newly restored Maine monument.

Henry P. Fletcher, delegate from the United States to the Pan-American conference also will take part in the memorial services. Patriotic associations to participate will include the Spanish-American War Veterans, the Veterans of the Cuban Wars of Independence and the American Legion Post of Havana.

Most of the delegates to the Pan-American conference were expected to attend, paying a double tribute of respect to Cuba and friendliness to the United States.

The Maine memorial recently has been repaired, after sustaining severe damage in the Cuban hurricane of 1926. Forming a major part of the monument are two rusted guns and huge anchor chains from the battleship, crusted with salt from the waters in which they rested for 14 years.

The memorial stands but a short distance from the spot where the battleship went down with an explosion which aroused America to war heat.

A few weeks ago, President Coolidge came to Havana and added a historical touch to his arrival when his transporting boat — the battleship Texas—came into the harbor and anchored directly over the spot where the Maine sunk.

The Maine was blown up on February 15. Spanish denials were profuse, but on April 21, 1898, war was declared and thousands of American youths answered the call for service in Cuba.

Fourteen years later the battleship was raised and the shattered hulk towed out into the gulf stream and consecrated to its everlasting sleep.

ASSERT BOND ISSUE WILL AID ROADS NOW

St. Paul, Feb. 15.—(U.P.)—Improvement of state highways will be urged at an organization meeting here today to be addressed by Glenn C. Haynes, Des Moines, Ia., executive manager of the Iowa Good Roads association. The purposes of the organization to be formed will be to further plans for issuance of $20,000,000 in Minnesota trunk highway bonds and to enlarge the state trunk highway system.

EARL OF OXFORD AND ASQUITH PASSES AWAY

WAS ONE OF ENGLAND'S GREAT POLITICAL FIGURES

HE WAS PRIME MINISTER DURING EARLY STAGES OF WORLD WAR

Sutton Courtney, Eng., Feb. 15.—(UP)—The Earl of Oxford and Asquith, one of England's great political figures and prime minister during the early stages of the world war, died today at 6:50 A. M.

He had been ill since Sunday when he was stricken with an attack of pharyngitis.

He had been in a coma most of the time, unable to recognize immediate members of his family who had gathered.

Death came peacefully to the 75-year old former prime minister, who for two score years had been one of the outstanding politicians of England.

The heir to the earldom is Viscount Asquith, 12 the son of Raymond Asquith who was killed during the war.

Lord Oxford was the second of the great British war figures to die within the past few weeks. Recently Earl Haig, British field marshal during the world war, died and was buried near his former home in Bermersyde, Scotland. The nation still was mourning the death of the popular Earl Haig when news of the passing of Lord Oxford became known.

Asquith will be buried at Westminster Abbey after a state funeral unless it is found that he requested otherwise.

NAVAL PROGRAM IS OPPOSED AS MENACE

By THOMAS L. STOKES
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Feb. 15.—The administration's proposed naval program was opposed as a "menace" to world peace today by representatives of peace, religious and church organizations appearing before the house naval affairs committee.

They declared agitation for a huge navy is creating a distrust of the United States among other nations, particularly Great Britain and Japan, which might end in war if the program were carried out.

AGED WOMAN IS FATALLY INJURED IN TRAFFIC ACCIDENT

Minneapolis, Feb. 15.—(U.P.)—Mrs. H. M. Hellickson, 62, was fatally injured in a traffic accident here Tuesday night. She was struck by a street car while crossing a street.

OPPOSITION REARS HEAD TO HOOVER

SEEKS TO SOLIDIFY OPPOSITION TO HOOVER, JOINS MIDWEST FARM GROUP

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Feb. 15.—The dominant republican party group in the United States senate is negotiating privately with the midwestern farm group to solidify opposition to the candidacy of Secretary of Commerce Hoover for the presidential nomination.

An appointed republican leader went to a leader of the independent group after Hoover's candidacy was announced Sunday night, the United Press learned today.

He received the following assurances from the farm lieutenant:

1. The farm group members strongly oppose Hoover and even would prefer President Coolidge—whom they do not favor especially—for renomination, because of their feeling that Hoover is chiefly responsible for the president's attitude against the McNary-Haugen bill and because of Hoover's activities as food administrator during the war.

2. If Hoover should be nominated against a democratic candidate who favored farm relief, the farm group would begin agitation for a diversion from the republican candidate.

3. The farm group is planning a more active movement for Senator Norris of Nebraska in the next few weeks with an idea of building up strength for him in the next convention. It is now expected he will have at least Wisconsin and Nebraska.

In answer to these statements, the republican leader declared that his group would work for an advocate of the McNary-Haugen price stabilization farm bill and that he believed the two factions of the party which always have been divergent might unite on a candidate.

Meantime there was a momentary lull in the Hoover-Willis battle for control of the Ohio convention delegation. Although Hoover was in Florida fishing, his friends here made known that he "would be delighted" to appear before the senate commerce committee any time after his return a week from today.

His appearance was asked yesterday by the committee of which Senator Willis is an influential member.

Columbia, Mo., Feb. 15.—Severe opposition to the candidacy of Herbert Hoover for the republican nomination for president was voiced here by William Hirth, head of the Missouri Farmers' Association and publisher of the Missouri Farmer.

In an open letter to Dr. E. B. Clements, republican national committeeman for Missouri, Hirth stated nomination of Herbert Hoover would lose thousands of votes of Missouri farmers for the republican party.

He assailed efforts to stampede the Missouri delegation to the national convention of the republican party into supporting Hoover for the presidential nomination.

"If by any chance Hoover should become the nominee, there is not the slightest question that tens of thousands of republican farmers in Missouri will vote for the democratic nominee for president, and this almost regardless of who he may be.

"And it is equally true that if Mr. Lowden or General Dawes should be the nominee, that tens of thousands of our democratic farmers will support either of them."

HUNDREDS ARE 'GETTING UNDER WIRE' LAST MINUTE

St. Paul, Feb. 15.—(U.P.)—Hundreds of automobile owners were "getting under the wire" at the state capitol today to avoid paying penalty for license tags.

Reports received at the secretary of state's office indicated that throughout the state autoists were taking advantage of the last day for application for licenses.

Secretary of State Mike Holm announced that starting tomorrow a fine of 25 cents a day will be charged to automobile owners until applications are made.

CAPT. DONNELLAN ON GOOD WILL TOUR TO SOUTH AMERICA

TAKES OFF FROM HAVANA TODAY FOR BRITISH HONDURAS

HIS FLIGHT TODAY WILL BE OVER A 500-MILE COURSE

Havana, Cuba, Feb. 15.—(UP)—Captain Joseph Donnellan, who is on a good will tour to South America, took off from Columbus Flying Field at 8:05 A. M. today for the British Honduras.

Only a few pepole were at the flying field to watch his getaway, which was perfectly made.

Captain Donnellan's flight today will be over a 500-mile course, most of which is over water.

He planned to go by way of Cape San Antonio, the island of Mugiers off Yucatan, Carzumel Isles, Point Herrero, Ambergris Reef and finally to land at Belize.

He is flying in a single seated Waco plane and carried no radio equipment.

The flight the St. Joseph, Mich., flyer is undertaking will be about 18,000 miles when he successfully returns to the United States. He hoped to be able to establish a commercial route through most of South America, hooking up the northern and southern continents.

Thursday he planned to fly from British Honduras to Nicaragua.

He started on his flight from Chicago January 29.

Reward of $500 for Slayers of Miss Pearl Osten Offered

St. Paul, Feb. 15.—(U.P.)—Reward of $500 for the slayers of Miss Pearl Osten, Minnesota college student, was offered by the state in a proclamation issued today by Gov. Theo. Christianson.

The student was brutally slain in Minneapolis Oct. 2, and after an exhaustive search, police were without the slayer.

Miss Osten's home was at Norwegian Grove, Ottertail county, where were circulated petitions urging the state to post a reward.

SECRETARY HOOVER TO GIVE HIS VIEWS ON FLOOD CONTROL

Washington, Feb. 15.—(U.P.)—Secretary of Commerce Hoover will appear before the senate interstate commerce committee Friday, Feb. 24, to tell his views on Mississippi flood control.

Chairman Jones of the committee held a telephone conversation today with Hoover, who is on a Florida fishing trip, and arranged the date for the secretary's appearance. Hoover said he would be glad to curtail his trip and return to Washington immediately, but Jones assured him this was unnecessary.

STATE CONTENDS THEY KILLED IVY THOMS

MOTION FOR CONTINUANCE BY HICKMAN ATTORNEYS IS OVERRULED

APPEAL TO U. S. SUPREME COURT TO BE MADE IN HICKMAN CASE

By DAN CAMPBELL
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Courtroom, Los Angeles, Feb. 15.—(UP)—William Edward Hickman and his erstwhile pal, Welby Hunt, went to trial here today for the murder of C. Ivy Thoms, Rosehill druggist.

The case was assigned to Superior Court Judge Elliott Craig after Superior Judge Carlos S. Hardy had overruled a motion for a continuance made by attorneys for Hickman.

Los Angeles, Feb. 15.—An attack upon the constitutionality of California's new and untested criminal statute which allows a defendant to plead not guilty by reason of insanity, appeared probable today as attorneys for William Edward Hickman prepared to seek a state supreme court appeal from a sentence of death imposed upon the convicted slayer of little Marion Parker.

The appeal was to be based upon the contention that Hickman was denied his constitutional right of trial in the Parker case. Defense counsel contended Hickman was not tried on the question of his guilt or innocence, but on the sole issue of his mental condition.

The moves proposed by defense counsel may delay execution, set for April 27, for at least a year, it is pointed out. Defeat in the state supreme court will be followed by an appeal to the United States supreme court, Walsh and Cantillon have declared.

Postponement until Monday of the opening of the Hickman-Hunt trial for the murder of Thoms, a Los Angeles druggist, delayed removal of Hickman to San Quentin penitentiary.

McNARY FARM RELIEF BILL IS FAVORABLY REPORTED

Washington, Feb. 15.—(U.P.)—The McNary farm relief bill was favorably reported today by the senate agriculture committee.

The measure is substantially the same as the McNary-Haugen bill vetoed by President Coolidge after it passed the last congress.

Although modified in certain details, the bill reported by the committee contains the equalization fee provision to which the president objected last year.

SHERIFF SAYS ARREST IS MISSING PRISONER

St. Clarisville, O., Feb. 15.—(U.P.)—Sheriff C. C. Hardesty, of Belmont county, expressed certainty today that Albert Jennings, arrested here for attempting to defraud a gas station proprietor is John Burns, who disappeared with another prisoner and two Indiana deputy sheriffs while en route from Lafayette, Ind., to the reformatory at Pendleton. Hardesty based his declaration on comparison with photographs of Burns. The companion captured here with Burns is believed to be Samuel Baxter, the other escaped prisoner.

DOCTORS TAKE AWAY BULLET FROM MAN; NEAR HEART REGION

MOVE AFOOT TO CLIP WINGS OF LONE EAGLE

CONTROVERSY SMOULDERING IN CONGRESS

"THERE MUST BE PIONEERS TO SHOW THE WAY," SAYS LINDBERGH

WING-CLIPPING BASED ON FEAR FOR PERSONAL SAFETY IN TRAIL-BLAZING

By FOSTER EATON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 15.—A quiet controversy smouldered here today between the pioneering spirit of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and those who seek to curtail his future flying activities.

"There must be pioneers to show the way," the 'Lone Eagle' commented when told that a wing-clipping movement was afoot in high government circles, based on fear for his personal safety in trail-blazing flights.

There was a trace of an indication that Lindbergh felt "the opposition" didn't understand; there also was clear indication that he did not consider his recent good-will tours in the category of "stunts."

The controversy, which broke upon aviation circles here yesterday with the statement of Secretary of War Dwight F. Davis opposing 'jungle flights,' rapidly found echo in congress, where members talked of passing a resolution requesting Lindbergh to avoid hazardous flying.

"I have no comment to make until I hear personally from Secretary Davis," Lindbergh replied to an inquiry late yesterday following his return from a three-hour welcome-home flight over the city of St. Louis.

He was pressed for a more pointed answer, and finally said:

"I do not consider the flying I have done recently in the nature of 'stunt flying,' but rather as carefully planned ventures.

"I may do some more experimental flying later, but as a whole I do not consider aviation in the experimental stage.

"There must be pioneers to show the way when new methods of transportation are coming into use, and pioneering has its hazards.

"But it has been my observation that those who do the pioneering are the last to think of the danger."

It was obvious that the quiet, reticent youth who has risen in less than a year to a position of world prominence by his skill in daring flight, much rather preferred to speak of other things.

"I really am in retirement just now," he said, "and have no plans beyond the air-mail trip of next week, so for the present at least there is no danger."

Lindbergh today was to be the guest at a Chamber of Commerce luncheon. He was to be the only speaker on the program. More than 700 reservations already had been made for the luncheon.

For three hours yesterday he flew lazily, almost playfully over the city and river-front here displaying the maneuverability of his famous 'Spirit of St. Louis'—which safely carried him more than 40,000 miles since last May.

Six times he roared the plane low over the Mississippi river levees, where more than 60,000 public and private school children were massed and waved him a welcome home with miniature American flags. Later he swung out over the city's housetops in greeting to adult residents of St. Louis.

BITTER PERSONAL DEBATE IN SENATE

Washington, Feb. 15.—(U.P.)—Bitter personal debate aroused the senate to a fever pitch today as both sides in the power combine fight closed their arguments preparatory to a final vote upon the Walsh resolution for a senatorial inquiry into public utilities activities.

After Sen. Bruce, democrat, Maryland, had personally assailed Sen. Walsh of Montana and condemned the growing tendency of the senate to investigate everything under the sun, Sen. Dill, democrat, Washington, delivered a scathing attack upon the Wall street interests and the power trust.

Washington, Feb. 15.—(UP)—Two witnesses in New York notified the senate Teapot Dome committee that they can identify the $75,000 of liberty bonds sold by Senator T. Coleman Du Pont of Delaware to pay off a 1920 debt of the republican national committee, Chairman Nye announced today.

Nye said the serial numbers of the bonds indicated they were among the liberty bonds purchased by the Continental Trading Company from profits derived in the strange oil deal of 1921.

Joseph F. McMahon of Potter & Company and James Bernieri of C. F. Childs & Company, were the witnesses with whom the committee communicated. They will appear to testify at reopening of the hearing tomorrow.

McMahon will testify concerning the sale November 30, 1923, of $75,000 of three liberty bonds for $74,718, which was deposited to Du Pont's account, according to Nye.

Bernieri will testify, Nye said, that Childs & Company bought the bonds from Potter & Company and paid the $74,718 in cash.

Thirty Years Ago Today, Maine Was Blown Up In Havana Harbor---Today, Memorial Services

PRESIDENT MACHADO LEADS IN SOLEMN SERVICES AT MAINE MEMORIAL PARK

PATRIOTIC ASSOCIATIONS PARTICIPATE IN THE EXERCISES HELD TODAY

By ALFRED P. RECK
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Havana, Feb. 15. — Thirty years ago today, the steel hulk of a battleship rocked gently in the calm harbor waters of Havana. There was little to break the silence except the muffled tread of the deck watch's feet and the lap of the waves against the bow marked with the word "Maine."

Half a mile away, the lights of a city glistened and danced across the waters. To the stern was the outline of a grim fortress, dotted by the black snouts of guns. The moon was not yet above the horizon, but a myriad of stars twinkled overhead.

It was peace—there was no cause for alarm—on the deck of the ship the sentry walked his beat calmly without the slightest intimation of pending disaster. Below several hundred men were sleeping. Ashore others were making merry — wine glasses clinked and bright eyes of senoritas flashed at the trim officers from the American ship.

Then the city—half asleep and half awake with festivity — was aroused by a mighty roar. Water spouted high in the harbor. Where the lights danced merrily over the waves a minute before was foam-flecked wreckage and high, fast pulsing ripples.

Where the outline of the battleship stood was nothing but shattered masts. The silence was broken by shrieks. Two hundred and sixty American sailors were drowned.

There in the shadow of Morro Castle, in the Havana harbor, thirty years ago, on February 15, 1898, the battleship Maine was blown up, resulting in a war with Spain and the liberation of Cuba.

Today President Machado will lead in the memorial services in the newly completed Maine memorial park. Cubans and Americans alike will gather to pay tribute to a common historical tradition and ideal, before the newly restored Maine monument.

Henry P. Fletcher, delegate from the United States to the Pan-American conference also will take part in the memorial services. Patriotic associations to participate will include the Spanish-American War Veterans, the Veterans of the Cuban Wars of Independence and the American Legion Post of Havana.

Most of the delegates to the Pan-American conference were expected to attend, paying a double tribute of respect to Cuba and friendliness to the United States.

The Maine memorial recently has been repaired, after sustaining severe damage in the Cuban hurricane of 1926. Forming a major part of the monument are two rusted guns and huge anchor chains from the battleship, crusted with salt from the waters in which they rested for 14 years.

The memorial stands but a short distance from the spot where the battleship went down with an explosion which aroused America to war heat.

A few weeks ago, President Coolidge came to Havana and added a historical touch to his arrival when his transporting boat — the battleship Texas—came into the harbor and anchored directly over the spot where the Maine sunk.

The Maine was blown up on February 15. Spanish denials were profuse, but on April 21, 1898, war was declared and thousands of American youths answered the call for service in Cuba.

Fourteen years later the battleship was raised and the shattered hulk towed out into the gulf stream and consecrated to its everlasting sleep.

The purposes of the organization to be formed will be to further plans for issuance of $20,000,000 in Minnesota trunk highway bonds and to enlarge the state trunk highway system.

EARL OF OXFORD AND ASQUITH PASSES AWAY

WAS ONE OF ENGLAND'S GREAT POLITICAL FIGURES

HE WAS PRIME MINISTER DURING EARLY STAGES OF WORLD WAR

Sutton Courtney, Eng., Feb. 15.—(UP)—The Earl of Oxford and Asquith, one of England's great political figures and prime minister during the early stages of the world war, died today at 6:50 A. M.

He had been ill since Sunday when he was stricken with an attack of pharyngitis.

He had been in a coma most of the time, unable to recognize immediate members of his family who had gathered.

Death came peacefully to the 75-year old former prime minister, who for two score years had been one of the outstanding politicians of England.

The heir to the earldom is Viscount Asquith, 12 the son of Raymond Asquith who was killed during the war.

Lord Oxford was the second of the great British war figures to die within the past few weeks. Recently Earl Haig, British field marshal during the world war, died and was buried near his former home in Bermersyde, Scotland. The nation still was mourning the death of the popular Earl Haig when news of the passing of Lord Oxford became known.

Asquith will be buried at Westminster Abbey after a state funeral unless it is found that he requested otherwise.

NAVAL PROGRAM IS OPPOSED AS MENACE

By THOMAS L. STOKES
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Feb. 15.—The administration's proposed naval program was opposed as a "menace" to world peace today by representatives of peace, religious and church organizations appearing before the house naval affairs committee.

They declared agitation for a huge navy is creating a distrust of the United States among other nations, particularly Great Britain and Japan, which might end in war if the program were carried out.

OPPOSITION REARS HEAD TO HOOVER

SEEKS TO SOLIDIFY OPPOSITION TO HOOVER, JOINS MIDWEST FARM GROUP

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Feb. 15.—The dominant republican party group in the United States senate is negotiating privately with the midwestern farm group to solidify opposition to the candidacy of Secretary of Commerce Hoover for the presidential nomination.

An appointed republican leader went to a leader of the independent group after Hoover's candidacy was announced Sunday night, the United Press learned today.

He received the following assurances from the farm lieutenant:

1. The farm group members strongly oppose Hoover and even would prefer President Coolidge—whom they do not favor especially—for renomination, because of their feeling that Hoover is chiefly responsible for the president's attitude against the McNary-Haugen bill and because of Hoover's activities as food administrator during the war.

2. If Hoover should be nominated against a democratic candidate who favored farm relief, the farm group would begin agitation for a diversion from the republican candidate.

3. The farm group is planning a more active movement for Senator Norris of Nebraska in the next few weeks with an idea of building up strength for him in the next convention. It is now expected he will have at least Wisconsin and Nebraska.

In answer to these statements, the republican leader declared that his group would work for an advocate of the McNary-Haugen price stabilization farm bill and that he believed the two factions of the party which always have been divergent might unite on a candidate.

Meantime there was a momentary lull in the Hoover-Willis battle for control of the Ohio convention delegation. Although Hoover was in Florida fishing, his friends here made known that he "would be delighted" to appear before the senate commerce committee any time after his return a week from today.

His appearance was asked yesterday by the committee of which Senator Willis is an influential member.

Columbia, Mo., Feb. 15.—Severe opposition to the candidacy of Herbert Hoover for the republican nomination for president was voiced here by William Hirth, head of the Missouri Farmers' Association and publisher of the Missouri Farmer.

In an open letter to Dr. E. B. Clements, republican national committeeman for Missouri, Hirth stated nomination of Herbert Hoover would lose thousands of votes of Missouri farmers for the republican party.

He assailed efforts to stampede the Missouri delegation to the national convention of the republican party into supporting Hoover for the presidential nomination.

"If by any chance Hoover should become the nominee, there is not the slightest question that tens of thousands of republican farmers in Missouri will vote for the democratic nominee for president, and this almost regardless of who he may be.

"And it is equally true that if Mr. Lowden or General Dawes should be the nominee, that tens of thousands of our democratic farmers will support either of them."

HUNDREDS ARE 'GETTING UNDER WIRE' LAST MINUTE

St. Paul, Feb. 15.—(U.P.)—Hundreds of automobile owners were "getting under the wire" at the state capitol today to avoid paying penalty for license tags.

Reports received at the secretary of state's office indicated that throughout the state autoists were taking advantage of the last day for application for licenses.

Secretary of State Mike Holm announced that starting tomorrow a fine of 25 cents a day will be charged to automobile owners until applications are made.

CAPT. DONNELLAN ON GOOD WILL TOUR TO SOUTH AMERICA

HIS FLIGHT TODAY WILL BE OVER A 500-MILE COURSE

Havana, Cuba, Feb. 15.—(UP)—Captain Joseph Donnellan, who is on a good will tour to South America, took off from Columbus Flying Field at 8:05 A. M. today for the British Honduras.

Only a few pepole were at the flying field to watch his getaway, which was perfectly made.

Captain Donnellan's flight today will be over a 500-mile course, most of which is over water.

He planned to go by way of Cape San Antonio, the island of Mugiers off Yucatan, Carzumel Isles, Point Herrero, Ambergris Reef and finally to land at Belize.

He is flying in a single seated Waco plane and carried no radio equipment.

The flight the St. Joseph, Mich., flyer is undertaking will be about 18,000 miles when he successfully returns to the United States. He hoped to be able to establish a commercial route through most of South America, hooking up the northern and southern continents.

Thursday he planned to fly from British Honduras to Nicaragua.

He started on his flight from Chicago January 29.

Reward of $500 for Slayers of Miss Pearl Osten Offered

St. Paul, Feb. 15.—(U.P.)—Reward of $500 for the slayers of Miss Pearl Osten, Minnesota college student, was offered by the state in a proclamation issued today by Gov. Theo. Christianson.

The student was brutally slain in Minneapolis Oct. 2, and after an exhaustive search, police were without the slayer.

Miss Osten's home was at Norwegian Grove, Ottertail county, where were circulated petitions urging the state to post a reward.

SECRETARY HOOVER TO GIVE HIS VIEWS ON FLOOD CONTROL

Washington, Feb. 15.—(U.P.)—Secretary of Commerce Hoover will appear before the senate interstate commerce committee Friday, Feb. 24, to tell his views on Mississippi flood control.

Chairman Jones of the committee held a telephone conversation today with Hoover, who is on a Florida fishing trip, and arranged the date for the secretary's appearance. Hoover said he would be glad to curtail his trip and return to Washington immediately, but Jones assured him this was unnecessary.

STATE CONTENDS THEY KILLED IVY THOMS

MOTION FOR CONTINUANCE BY HICKMAN ATTORNEYS IS OVERRULED

APPEAL TO U. S. SUPREME COURT TO BE MADE IN HICKMAN CASE

By DAN CAMPBELL
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Courtroom, Los Angeles, Feb. 15.—(UP)—William Edward Hickman and his erstwhile pal, Welby Hunt, went to trial here today for the murder of C. Ivy Thoms, Rosehill druggist.

The case was assigned to Superior Court Judge Elliott Craig after Superior Judge Carlos S. Hardy had overruled a motion for a continuance made by attorneys for Hickman.

Los Angeles, Feb. 15.—An attack upon the constitutionality of California's new and untested criminal statute which allows a defendant to plead not guilty by reason of insanity, appeared probable today as attorneys for William Edward Hickman prepared to seek a state supreme court appeal from a sentence of death imposed upon the convicted slayer of little Marion Parker.

The appeal was to be based upon the contention that Hickman was denied his constitutional right of trial in the Parker case. Defense counsel contended Hickman was not tried on the question of his guilt or innocence, but on the sole issue of his mental condition.

The moves proposed by defense counsel may delay execution, set for April 27, for at least a year, it is pointed out. Defeat in the state supreme court will be followed by an appeal to the United States supreme court, Walsh and Cantillon have declared.

Postponement until Monday of the opening of the Hickman-Hunt trial for the murder of Thoms, a Los Angeles druggist, delayed removal of Hickman to San Quentin penitentiary.

McNARY FARM RELIEF BILL IS FAVORABLY REPORTED

Washington, Feb. 15.—(U.P.)—The McNary farm relief bill was favorably reported today by the senate agriculture committee.

The measure is substantially the same as the McNary-Haugen bill vetoed by President Coolidge after it passed the last congress.

Although modified in certain details, the bill reported by the committee contains the equalization fee provision to which the president objected last year.

SHERIFF SAYS ARREST IS MISSING PRISONER

St. Clarisville, O., Feb. 15.—(U.P.)—Sheriff C. C. Hardesty, of Belmont county, expressed certainty today that Albert Jennings, arrested here for attempting to defraud a gas station proprietor is John Burns, who disappeared with another prisoner and two Indiana deputy sheriffs while en route from Lafayette, Ind., to the reformatory at Pendleton. Hardesty based his declaration on comparison with photographs of Burns. The companion captured here with Burns is believed to be Samuel Baxter, the other escaped prisoner.

BRAINERD 25 YEARS AGO

From the Daily Dispatch

February 15, 1903

Last night there was a jolly sleigh ride party that drove out to Davenport where Charles Krech had made preparations for a big spread at the school house. The evening was one of the most pleasant imaginable and all had a delightful time, including Mr. Krech himself, who did his best to entertain the "town folks."

Mrs. H. Theviot expects to leave the first of the week for the eastern market to buy her spring and summer stock of millinery.

Fred McGivern has gone to work again for the M. & I. and Fred McNaughton has gone to one of the Akeley camps up north to work for the balance of the winter.

Mrs. Fred Boor of Minneapolis arrived to spend a short time visiting with her sister, Mrs. C. H. Kyllo.

E. O. Parks, general storekeeper for the Northern Pacific is in the city today attending the meeting of the master mechanics and shop superintendents.

John H. Ley, of St. Cloud, publisher of the city directory of Brainerd, which was issued in the summer of 1901, is in the city again. The new directory will be an improvement over the old one, and as there are a number of changes in the city since the last directory was issued, there is a popular demand for a new one.

Methodist Sunshine Girls

The Sunshine Girls of the M. E. church were entertained at the home of Miss Alice Kurz, Saturday afternoon. The following officers were elected for the coming year:

President—Gale Tollefson.
Vice President—Marion Mackey.
Secretary—Orma Cochrane.
Treasurer—Bernice Paul.

After the business meeting a social hour was enjoyed and a dainty luncheon was served.

Forward Society

The Forward society of the Clara Lutheran church will be entertained in the church parlors Thursday evening at 8 o'clock by Mrs. McGinn, Mrs. Colin Peter and Mrs. C. E. Anderson. It is hoped to see a large attendance of members and friends.

Miss Geraldine Kiebler Delights Audience With Rendition of Violin Numbers

That laughter is a necessary health and beauty lotion as well as a tonic and builder of pleasing personalities was expressed by Mrs. A. G. Patterson in a talk on the valuation of laughter at the regular monthly meeting of the Lincoln P. T. A. Tuesday afternoon. Her talk was further enforced by a demonstration how laughter could be caused.

A large number of parents were in attendance for the meeting. It opened with the singing of the national P. T. A. hymn followed by piano solos by Miss Lorraine Morrison.

Mrs. Roy Hall read an article "Founders Day" from the child welfare magazine. Two pleasing violin solos were rendered by Miss Geraldine Kiebler, accompanied by Miss Effie Drexler at the piano. Miss Mary Hughey told in an interesting manner several humorous stories.

The teachers were hosts and served a dainty Valentine lunch.

BRAINERD 25 YEARS AGO

From the Daily Dispatch

February 15, 1903

Last night there was a jolly sleigh ride party that drove out to Davenport where Charles Krech had made preparations for a big spread at the school house. The evening was one of the most pleasant imaginable and all had a delightful time, including Mr. Krech himself, who did his best to entertain the "town folks."

Mrs. H. Theviot expects to leave the first of the week for the eastern market to buy her spring and summer stock of millinery.

Fred McGivern has gone to work again for the M. & I. and Fred McNaughton has gone to one of the Akeley camps up north to work for the balance of the winter.

Mrs. Fred Boor of Minneapolis arrived to spend a short time visiting with her sister, Mrs. C. H. Kyllo.

E. O. Parks, general storekeeper for the Northern Pacific is in the city today attending the meeting of the master mechanics and shop superintendents.

John H. Ley, of St. Cloud, publisher of the city directory of Brainerd, which was issued in the summer of 1901, is in the city again. The new directory will be an improvement over the old one, and as there are a number of changes in the city since the last directory was issued, there is a popular demand for a new one.

Methodist Sunshine Girls

The Sunshine Girls of the M. E. church were entertained at the home of Miss Alice Kurz, Saturday afternoon. The following officers were elected for the coming year:

President—Gale Tollefson.
Vice President—Marion Mackey.
Secretary—Orma Cochrane.
Treasurer—Bernice Paul.

After the business meeting a social hour was enjoyed and a dainty luncheon was served.

Forward Society

The Forward society of the Clara Lutheran church will be entertained in the church parlors Thursday evening at 8 o'clock by Mrs. McGinn, Mrs. Colin Peter and Mrs. C. E. Anderson. It is hoped to see a large attendance of members and friends.

Miss Geraldine Kiebler Delights Audience With Rendition of Violin Numbers

That laughter is a necessary health and beauty lotion as well as a tonic and builder of pleasing personalities was expressed by Mrs. A. G. Patterson in a talk on the valuation of laughter at the regular monthly meeting of the Lincoln P. T. A. Tuesday afternoon. Her talk was further enforced by a demonstration how laughter could be caused.

A large number of parents were in attendance for the meeting. It opened with the singing of the national P. T. A. hymn followed by piano solos by Miss Lorraine Morrison.

Mrs. Roy Hall read an article "Founders Day" from the child welfare magazine. Two pleasing violin solos were rendered by Miss Geraldine Kiebler, accompanied by Miss Effie Drexler at the piano. Miss Mary Hughey told in an interesting manner several humorous stories.

The teachers were hosts and served a dainty Valentine lunch.

5 YOUTHS, CHASED BY POLICE, LEAP INTO THE LAKE

Chicago, Feb. 15. — (U.P.)—Five youths, pursued by police who thought they were automobile thieves, leaped from pier into Lake Michigan last night, and three of them were reported missing today. Two were captured as they clung to rocks fringing the pier.

Police believed the three missing youths were drowned. Coast guardsmen, asked to drag the lake near the pier, said the youths probably had waded ashore.

The five youths were riding in a stolen automobile when police started chasing them.

Charles Golab, 17, and Joseph Gorney, 17, were captured. James Korba, 17, Earl Diamond, 18, and a youth known as Metaka were missing.

CAUSE OF NORRIE FIRE A MYSTERY

Minneapolis, Feb. 15.—Investigation of the fire which swept the home of Frank J. Norrie, taking the lives of two persons, showed that an oil burner in the house was still operating normally after the blaze started.

With thsi indication that the oil burner was not the cause of the fire, authorities today continued an investigation in other channels.

Washington, Feb. 15. — (U.P.) — The senate foreign relations committee today held up action on the new Franco-American arbitration treaty and voted to call Secretary of State Kellogg for interpretation of some of its clauses.

Gary Cooper and Evelyn Brent in the Paramount Picture "Beau Sabreur"

After taking a vow never to look at a woman and to devote his life to military missions for France, only to meet and fall in love with a beautiful girl while performing one of these duties, forms the basis of the story of "Beau Sabreur" which will be at the Lyceum tonight also Thursday and Friday and which Paramount has adapted from Percival Christopher Wren's sequel to "Beau Geste."

"Beau Sabreur" is described as a melodramatic romance, filled to the brim with heart interest as only Wren could write it.

Gary Cooper is in the title role, that of Major Henri de Beaujolais, the beautiful swordsman, a dashing, virile and handsome officer in the French army, stationed in Arabia so that France might some day make an empire of the desert wastes. The girl, Mary Vanbrugh, an American visiting her military uncle in Zaguig, on the Sahara, is played by Evelyn Brent.

MAN BEGINS 22ND DAY WITHOUT FOOD

Omaha, Neb., Feb. 15.—(U.P.)—R. F. Kucharo today began his 22nd day without food. The man is fasting in an effort to cure paralysis with which he has been stricken more than a year.

Kucharo indicated he may break the fast if he fails to show improvement at the end of a 30 day period.

The treatment is the man's own idea and is being watched eagerly by other paralytics.

During the experimental treatment the man is doing his daily work as usual.

ROTARIANS AND ROTARY ANNS

Blaze of Color, Wealth of Attractive Costumes Distinguishes Party

GIVEN AT ARCHERS

Splendid Dinner Followed by Many Stunts and Dancing

A blaze of color, a wealth of odd and attractive costumes, merriment in large measure distinguished the party given by the Rotary club last night at Archers Cafe.

The function started early. At 7 P. M. a splendid dinner menu with roast turkey as the chief dish was served in faultless manner. There were favors for the ladies and gentlemen. The entertainment had been planned by the fellowship committee of the club and the Rotary Anns and practically the whole club and all members' ladies were present.

Lou's band played and rendered excellent music. After the last course had been served, President Wm. Spencer made a few official announcements and Secretary G. W. Chadbourne made his report.

Mrs. J. P. Anderson, attired as a village letter carrier, had a letter plus a lot of pertinent comment for each Rotarian and when she had finished, each man read his comic Valentine.

Dancing followed the dinner and old and new dances were enjoyed. The costumes worn were varied and beautiful, ranging from Indian chief to Napoleon, Chinaman, pirate, colored couple, emigrants, woodsmen, clowns, courtier, etc.

YOUR SON'S IDEAL

WHO was the best man you ever knew?

This question is asked of our readers, the fathers of boys, for their earnest consideration.

If that question were put to your boy wouldn't it be mighty pleasing to hear him say "My Dad?"

How many fathers understand their boys, talk with them about their associates and friendships, encourage them to fight fair, to strike hard and always shake hands after every fight? How many fathers teach their boys to keep clean inside and out and become their best pals by setting an example for them to follow?

The highest ambition in life of some parents seems to be to strive to leave their children a goodly portion of this world's goods while others who leave no goods leave a finer inheritance—something money cannot buy.

In New Jersey six hundred twenty-eight schoolboys were asked "Who would you like to be?" More than half replied "Lindberg." Henry Ford, President Coolidge, Edison and one or two others received all the other votes except two. Those two votes were cast for "Dad."

The boy is a good judge of right and wrong and always recognizes the square deal. Living in the close intimacy of the home the son realizes that dad has his faults. He shuts his eyes to most of them and is loyal. But when asked who he would most like to be his ideal is some other man besides Dad.—Preston Times.

INDIANS HELP SELL MINNESOTA

THE spirit of "selling" Minnesota abroad has been absorbed by the Indians of the White Earth reservation in the northwestern section of the state.

Their "prospects" are the wealthy Osage Indians of Oklahoma, and they are endeavoring to prove to them why they should invest some of their earnings from oil lands in the great hunting and fishing ground of northwestern Minnesota.

Two years or more ago a group of Osage Indians visited our tourist park at Brainerd. They motored in Marmon and other expensive cars and carried their baggage and camp equipment on trucks. They were very polite, grateful for favors shown them and kept their space allotted to them scrupulously clean. After a short stay here they went north and visited Chippewas at Walker. All of the Osage Indians in the party were enormously wealthy because of their oil land holdings and royalties. Several of the girls in the party had university educations.

WILL IOWA SET PACE?

MINNESOTANS have hesitated and argued for something over three years on the advisability of meeting Commissioner Babcock's recommendation for floating a $20,000,000 bond issue to build up state highways.

In Iowa a special session of the legislature is to be called to pass on a $100,000,000 bond issue for the same purpose, and that at a time when Iowa has been constructing a major road program the past several years on a more progressive scale than Minnesota. Iowa highways, once the by-word and reproach of motorists, are such no longer. Given funds, five times as much as Minnesota highway engineers even hope for, Iowa will show her neighboring commonwealth to the north a clean pair of heels unless we are up and doing.—Mankato Free Press.

AN AGE OF SPEED

THIS is an age of speed. Every make of automobile now going on the market for 1928 is faster than before. It is faster for ordinary, everyday use, not just for test purposes. The automobile manufacturers have met the demand for swifter machines. But unless traffic regulations are strictly observed, 1928 is likely to see an unprecedented number of lives sacrificed on the altar to the god of speed.

If both motorists and pedestrians obey the rules, many lives will be saved and nobody will be really inconvenienced. And if everybody obeys the regulations, traffic will move faster, too.—Marshall News-Messenger.

SNOW PLOWING EFFECTIVE

MINNESOTA'S new plan of snow removal from the highways during the winter months is proving to be more effective than its most sanguine advocates had hoped for. We made a thirty-five mile drive Sunday over No. 7 and found very little snow or ice on the roadbed anywhere. Drifts which a month ago were seven and ten feet deep have been cleared entirely off the roadbed, which is now dry gravel, or a thin coating of ice in spots. Most all the road is now as dry and dusty as in August. This plan insures normal winter traffic as well as the saving of a lot of maintenance expense when the roads break up in the spring.—Tracy Headlight Herald.

THE important relation of good roads to diversified farming is emphasized in a bulletin issued by the Minnesota Highway department. Periods of poor roads, it points out, are a greater hardship in the present age of diversification than they were in pioneer days. And more farmers must get their milk, sweet cream, butter and eggs to market.

BUILDING up a poultry line during a six months' period that netted her $2,000, after deducting all labor charges and interest on her investment, is the experience of Mrs. R. W. Keeler, wife of a Stevens county farmer living near Morris, who in one year has become one of the leading turkey producers of the western part of the state.

EXPERT buttermakers and others interested in the making of prime butter will be the guests of the Minnesota College of Agriculture March 2. This has been announced as visitors day in connection with the advanced creamery operators' short course which begins February 23.

ITASCA county residents believe they have a candidate for long service honors among clerks of court in Minnesota. He is I. D. Rasmussen, who recently began his thirty-second consecutive year in office. He took over the duties early in 1897.

A NEW creamery plant, modern in every respect, will be erected by the West Side Creamery Association of Little Falls the coming spring.

Tamerlane

A LAME man, sinister and swarthy of face, and magnificent of attire, stood in a chariot, drawn by five other men. Behind the chariot, trundling along in an iron cage, was a gorgeously attired prisoner.

The sinister charioteer had a strong, ugly Mongolian face. He lashed the five luckless men who drew his chariot, and at every lash his watching army applauded. For he was Timour the Lame, commonly known as Tamerlane, conqueror of the East. And the five men who drew his chariot were kings whom he had captured and whose countries he had subdued. The man in the cage was Bajazet, the once mighty sultan of Turkey.

Tamerlane was in the full glory of his career. He chose the foregoing way to celebrate his achievements.

In 1336 this unprepossessing, ugly son had been born to the petty chief of a Mongol tribe near Samerkand. The lad was brought up more as a student than as a warrior, but before he was twenty his wild fighting blood, inherited from his great ancestor, Genghis Khan, broke out and he threw aside his scrolls and inkhorn for sword and helmet.

Handicapped by lameness, in a country and age when physical perfection counted for far more than now, he nevertheless, by sheer force of character, won early laurels as general and tribal chief. On his father's death Tamerlane and his brother-in-law, Hussein, were chosen as joint rulers. Tamerlane, without hesitancy, murdered Hussein and made himself sole chieftain. But this by no means satisfied his boundless ambition. He had laid out a plan of action worthy of Charlemagne or Caesar, and with his scimitar proceeded to carve his name upon the map of the world.

He began at home, by changing the semi-savage lawlessness of his own people into an established, firm government, worthy of a much later day; then started on his carefully prepared campaign of world conquest. Persia was the first object of his attack. It is an odd fact that nearly every great conqueror of early times, from Alexander to the Tartar, chose that powerful but ill-disciplined land as a primary goal of his achievements. Tamerlane swept Persia, his fiery tribesmen carrying all before them. He captured the Persian king and laid the country waste.

Cheered by his easy victory over a country so much stronger than his own, the Mongolian invader next subdued all of Central Asia and carried his conquests from the Great Wall of China to Moscow. Had he been a European his first idea would doubtless have been to conquer Europe, and he would have left the East for a later expedition. But, to his Oriental mind, Asia seemed the most important part of the earth. It was, perhaps, due to this notion of Tamerlane's that Europe was not overrun by the Eastern hordes and Western civilization and character tinged forever with Orientalism. Europe was probably reserved for subsequent invasion—an invasion which fate averted.

Rumors of the wealth of India reached Tamerlane. In 1398 he marched his vast armies thither, plowing a bloody furrow to the Ganges, overcoming all opposition, and looting millions of dollars' worth of native treasure. Here his native barbarity cropped out more strongly than ever before, and he left behind him a name for mercilessness that lives to this day. In one Hindoo district alone he massacred 100,000 prisoners.

The Turks, under Sultan Bajazet, were menacing the Eastern empire. Learning of this and jealous that any other man should emulate himself as an invader, Tamerlane hurried back from India and marched against the Turkish dominions. Like an army of ants his countless hordes overran Turkey, seizing Syria from the brave Mamelukes, and, on June 20, 1402, meeting Bajazet's army on the plain of Angoria. After a fiercely contested battle Tamerlane routed the Turks and took Bajazet prisoner. Not content with subduing Turkey, he vented his hate against Bajazet in a unique fashion. He caused a great iron cage to be built. Into this he thrust the beaten sultan and carried him about as a sort of human menagerie exhibit until the broken-hearted prisoner died of shame.

The conqueror next planned a mammoth expedition against China. When he should thus have subdued the last Asian power he would be free to turn his attention to Europe. But, in 1405, on the eve of the Chinese campaign, he died, and the "yellow peril" was checked.

Had Tamerlane been wholly a barbarian his feats would have been less far-reaching in their effect on the history of the world. But he was also a patron of science and the arts, a promoter of culture at home and abroad, an author and a man who built up civilization even while he destroyed nations. By forwarding the cause of learning, as much as by wholesale slaughter, he left an indelible mark on all the Orient.

VIRGINIA HAS BIG FOREST ACREAGE

Old Dominion Still Ranks 21st Among States.

Richmond, Va.—Virginia's forest area comprises 12,000,000 acres, according to a statistical survey compiled by Dr. Wilson Gee and J. J. Corson of the University of Virginia. Twenty states have a greater acreage in forest. Of these Oregon is first with 23,275,000 acres of her land area known as forest land.

Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia and Minnesota have more than 20,000,000 acres covered with timber.

In 1925 Virginia held sixteenth place in the amount of lumber cut, with a total of 709,180 feet, board measure. Washington cut the most, 7,027,325 feet, while Oregon was second with 4,216,383. Eleven other states cut more than 1,000,000 feet of lumber that year. They were Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, California, Nevada, Arkansas, Texas, Georgia, Idaho, Wisconsin and North Carolina.

Rhode Island cut the smallest amount of lumber, only 3,686 feet. Utah, Kansas, Delaware and New Jersey were the only other states to cut less than 10,000 feet.

Rhode Island also has the smallest area of her land in timber, 280,000 acres being listed as forest land. Delaware is next with 380,000 acres in forest.

Total land in timber in the United States is 469,475,000 acres, while 38,338,641 feet of timber were cut in all the states during 1925.

Hope for Humans Seen in Cures of Rat Cancer

London.—Much interest is shown in medical circles here in a description in the Lancet by Dr. Thomas Lumsden, working under the British empire cancer campaign, of cures of cancer in rats. This line of research obviously is followed in the hope of finding a treatment for human cancers but Doctor Lumsden refrains from mentioning the application of the method to human beings.

Briefly, Doctor Lumsden's method of attack on rat cancer consists of local injections of formalin, which damage the cancer cells in such a way that their vitality is destroyed without simultaneous destruction of their antigenic constituent—that is to say their virulence is removed, leaving a substance which is actively hostile to other cancer cells. Their substance, Doctor Lumsden says, is then absorbed into the blood and acts as an anti-cancer serum, "contemplating the cure of the treated tumor and preventing a recurrence."

Athough only small tumors can be treated by this method, Doctor Lumsden has had remarkable success, having cured 96 per cent of the rats treated by him since October. He hints at further developments by mentioning the possibility that some other substance more effective than either formalin or the anti-serum may be discovered.

Idle French Barges Menace Canal Traffic

Paris.—Twenty barges that are neither for sale nor for rent and which are never used are upsetting canal navigation in northern France.

Ancient laws and waterway rules prevent the authorities from interfering with the vagaries of a rich lawyer who for six years has allowed the fleet to deteriorate and block navigation, refusing chances to get half a million francs for boats that are only a source of trouble.

Ten of the boats are in port at Rouen and ten at Conflans-Saint-Honorine. So long as there is a legally named watchman—even if he doesn't spend much time watching—the barges can remain in the canals.

Removal of the barges has been tried by the authorities on all sorts of technicalities but the lawyer knows his rights and it looks as if the barges would continue to menace navigation until the lawyer changes his mind or the boats actually sink in the channel and have to be destroyed or removed at public expense.

100,000,000 Records of War Being Filed

Washington.—Progress in the classifying and filing of approximately 100,000,000 documents which the World war added to the records of the office of the adjutant general of the army has been reported by the War department.

The mass of documents includes not only the individual records of men in the army, but the correspondence and other papers of all the war-time camps, the forces in France and Siberia and the Army of Occupation in Germany. With the exception of the records of general headquarters in France and the Army of Occupation, all were received after the war in various conditions of disarrangement.

BALMY WEATHER, SPRING IS NEAR

(By United Press)

Balmy weather of the past two weeks giving rise to the thought that after all spring can't be far away was offset today by falling temperatures throughout the northwest. Clearing skies brought warmer weather as the day advanced. During the early morning hours, however, the mercury approached dangerously near the zero mark in several sections. At St. Paul 12 above zero was recorded—the coldest weather in two weeks.

Slightly warmer and clear weather is predicted for most of the area tonight and Thursday.

YOUR SON'S IDEAL

WHO was the best man you ever knew?

This question is asked of our readers, the fathers of boys, for their earnest consideration.

If that question were put to your boy wouldn't it be mighty pleasing to hear him say "My Dad?"

How many fathers understand their boys, talk with them about their associates and friendships, encourage them to fight fair, to strike hard and always shake hands after every fight? 100,000,000 Records of War Being Filed

Washington.—Progress in the classifying and filing of approximately 100,000,000 documents which the World war added to the records of the office of the adjutant general of the army has been reported by the War department.

The mass of documents includes not only the individual records of men in the army, but the correspondence and other papers of all the war-time camps, the forces in France and Siberia and the Army of Occupation in Germany. With the exception of the records of general headquarters in France and the Army of Occupation, all were received after the war in various conditions of disarrangement.

BALMY WEATHER, SPRING IS NEAR

(By United Press)

Balmy weather of the past two weeks giving rise to the thought that after all spring can't be far away was offset today by falling temperatures throughout the northwest. Clearing skies brought warmer weather as the day advanced. During the early morning hours, however, the mercury approached dangerously near the zero mark in several sections. At St. Paul 12 above zero was recorded—the coldest weather in two weeks.

Slightly warmer and clear weather is predicted for most of the area tonight and Thursday.

GIANTS AND CUBS STARTING TRAINING SEASON EARLY

ARE BENT ON GETTING JUMP ON THEIR RIVALS

NEW YORK GIANTS TO TRAIN AT HOT SPRINGS, ARK.

CUBS TO GET IN PENNANT SHAPE AT CATALINA ISLAND

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, Feb. 15.—Two potential National League pennant winners were to inaugurate the 1928 training season today in widely-separated winter resorts.

Bent on getting the jump on their rivals, the Giants and Cubs were to begin preliminary work at Hot Springs, Ark., and Avalon, Catalina Island, respectively.

Under the direction of Coach Roger Bresnahan, the famous Giant catcher of bygone days, the New York battery men were to start training in order to be in good condition when they report to Manager John McGraw at the Giants' training camp proper at Augusta, Ga., on March 1.

With Joe McCarthy himself on hand to supervise the workout, an even dozen Cubs were to begin the training grind.

Taking care not to make the same mistakes which cost each of them a pennant a year ago, McGraw and McCarthy made plans to condition their pitchers for a 154-game campaign.

Faltering pitchers tripped both clubs last year and the two leaders took every precaution to prevent a recurrence of the trouble.

Struggling through the first half of the season with a poorly conditioned pitching staff, the Giants almost won the pennant by a gallant drive during the last days of the campaign.

McGraw's pitchers completely failed him early in the race, and he had to bolster his staff by trading Eddie Farrell, a hard-hitting infielder, to the Braves for Larry Benton, a pitcher who was in shape. Once the Giant pitchers hit their stride, McGraw's club looked like the best team in the league, but New York had lost too much ground early in the race to close the gap.

Additional emphasis will be placed on the Giants' staff the coming season, because the club must get better pitching to make up for the lack of punch caused by the absence of Rogers Hornsby, the team's leading hitter in 1927.

Burleigh Grimes was sacrificed to the Pirates in order to get Vic Aldridge, a great pitcher in the spring. Grimes won 19 games last year, but he wasn't in shape early enough for McGraw. Aldridge figures prominently in McGraw's plans to get out in front early and stay there.

The predicament of the Cubs was just the reverse of the Giants. The Cubs got off great and were breezing along in first place when they started on their final eastern trip.

Charley Root collapsed from overwork and the entire Cub staff exploded right in McCarthy's face.

The Giants have made more effort to strengthen their pitching staff than any other team in the league. They have acquired eleven promising minor league hurlers and at least five of them were expected to add strength to the team.

Leo Mangum, who won 21 and lost 7 for Buffalo; Bill Walker, who won 19 and lost 9 for Denver; Jim Faulkner, who won 21 and lost 10 for Toronto; Ben Cantwell, who won 25 and lost 5 for Jacksonville; and Arthur Johnson, who won 23 and lost 9 for Fort Smith, are considered prize catches.

If two of them should come through, as expected, the Giants will have one of the best staffs in the league. Virgil Barnes, Larry Benton, Fred Fitzsimmons, Dutch Henry and Vic Aldridge will form the nucleus of the staff.

The Cubs will bank on practically the same pitchers they did last year. Root, Guy Bush, Sheriff Blake, Hal Carlson and Bob Osborn are the leaders. Pat Malone, who won 20 and lost 18 for Minneapolis, is the outstanding newcomer. With his arm well, Percy Jones, left-hander, is counted on as a regular.

REMAINDER OF GAMES MAY BE CALLED OFF

SPEEDY NORWEGIANS LEAVING TO COMPETE AT OSLO, NORWAY

AMERICAN ENTRIES WILL ALSO LEAVE, GIVING UP HOPES OF RACING ON SOFT ICE

St. Moritz, Switzerland, Feb. 15.—(UP)—The likelihood of the remainder of the winter Olympics being called off grew today as the thaw—which had made the lake unusable—continued.

All of today's program was postponed when it was found the ice was unfit for further contests.

The speedy Norwegians, who have skated off with most of the honors in the winter games, announced last night that they would leave today to compete in an important meet at Oslo, Norway, on Sunday. The American entries will remain for the rest of the tournament here.

Switzerland's variable weather brought on a dispute over the 10,000 metres race yesterday which for a time threatened to mar the second annual winter sports games.

After six of the contestants had completed their races in the 10,000-metre event, the chairman of the skating arrangements committee, Henning Olsen of Norway, proposed to call off the event because of the soft ice which was rapidly melting under a warm sun.

At the time, Irving Jaffee of the United States had defeated the Norwegian champion, Bernt Evensen, and made the best time of the day, 18 minutes 36 5-10 seconds.

Gustavus T. Kirby, representing the American Olympic committee, protested against the cancellation of the race. The championship was given Jaffee later by the committee. However, it was decided that the 10,000-metre race will be held over before the completion of the games without points being awarded, provided the ice does not thaw too much.

Clas Thunberg, champion skater of Europe, won the 1,300-metre race for Finland, with Norwegians second, third and fourth, and Americans occupying the next four places.

The 50 kilometres ski race was won by Hedlund of Sweden, whose time was 4 hours, 32 minutes, 27 seconds. Forty-one contestants took part in the event.

St. Moritz, Switzerland, Feb. 15.—Abandoning hope that the rapidly melting ice of Lake Moritz would harden again in time to permit competition of the winter sports program, the American Olympic team announced today it would leave tomorrow.

The Norwegians departed this morning to attend an important meet at Oslo Sunday.

Today's skating program already had been postponed.

Thus the program seemed doomed. So far as it had gone the Norwegians had taken most of the honors.

A mix-up over the 10,000 metres speed skating race became complicated today when the international Olympic committee decided to annul all results in the race despite the protest of the American team.

The race should be re-skated if weather permitted, the committee held.

By the international decision, Irving Jaffee, United States, is deprived of the title of 10,000-metre champion that it was thought he would get. The committee decided to cancel the race entirely.

The American team officials have protested the decision.

LEGION, Y. M. C. A. TO SETTLE CITY BASKETBALL TITLE

FIRST OF SERIES OF THREE GAMES TO BE PLAYED AT HIGH SCHOOL FEB. 25

BRAINERD TEAMS DISPLAY FINE BRAND OF CAGE BALL, SEASON RECORDS SHOW

The independent cage title of Brainerd will be decided this year in a three game series between the American Legion five and the Y. M. C. A., the first to take place Saturday, February 25 at the high school gymnasium.

Keen rivalry will feature the contests, as well as an opportunity for the local fans to see Brainerd basketball stock in action.

Cage classics here this season have formed the major items of attraction in the sport field. New stars found their way into the arena. The two independent teams have brought honor upon themselves in home games and away from the city. The American Legion team has been a credit to the city in the Central Minnesota League. Both teams rank high as capable attractions.

Whitlock, Bill Heikkinen, Fitzharris, Marshall, Lowe, Heikkinen, and DeRocher have been the big guns in the success of the Legion five. Welsh, Hess, Fitzsimmons, Zakariasen, Beck and Nutting have formed the nucleus of the "Y" machine.

There will be a concerted drive on the part of most of the American League clubs this year to beat the New York Yankees.

This, in itself, means that Miller Huggins' club, while easily the strongest baseball aggregation of modern times, cannot look forward to a walk-over in the 1928 race.

It is not so much that a majority of the other clubs in the league figure they can finish ahead of the Yanks. The Athletics might do so, and possibly Washington, but none of the others seem, at the moment, to have much chance to win the pennant.

What will count, however, will be the fact that the world's champions will be an obvious target all season long for each of their rivals to shoot at. Beating the Yankees at any time will be a feather in the cap of the successful club.

With seven teams shooting at the same mark, the path of Huggins, Ruth & Co., toward a third successive pennant is by no means strewn with roses. Pitchers who oppose the Yanks this year are likely to put a little something extra on the ball. Batsmen who face the New York pitchers are likely to be in there trying just a little bit harder for the winning hit.

This does not mean to hint that every club does not try to win every game, but baseball fans well know that no team can keep up a sustained spurt through a 154-game schedule. Certain clubs try harder to beat certain other clubs, usually for the purpose of improving their own standing in the league averages of games won and lost.

Connie Mack, whose Athletics once more look like the most dangerous of the contenders in the junior circuit, and Clark Griffith, whose Senators should be vastly improved by the addition of George Sisler, will be glad of the cooperation of the other clubs in the business of bringing the Yanks down from their high perch.

Miller Huggins needs another good left-handed pitcher. He knows better, however, than to try to acquire one from any of his American League rivals.

"You can't get players you need from other clubs in your league," said Huggins recently. He was explaining why he had gone to the Pacific Coast and spent a lot of money for Lary and Reese, to be delivered in 1929.

"By that time I may need a good infielder or I may want to make a swap with some club that does," continued the Yankee manager. "If I have a crack infielder for trading purposes, I can get somewhere in a deal with some American League club. But money won't buy the players you need, not when you need 'em."

In addition to the Athletics and the Senators, several other clubs may be looked upon as improved over their 1927 form. The Detroit Tigers should do better, so should the White Sox. Even the Boston Red Sox, while they may not climb out of the cellar, should win more ball games.

On the other hand, it is hard to see where the Yankees could be said to have improved. They have lost Dutch Reuther, and will try out old Stan Coveleskie in place of the star left hander. Lou Gehrig had an amazingly good year in 1927. He can hardly be expected to keep up the pace. Young Robertson from St. Paul may settle the third base problem, and he may not. The pitchers who won for the Yankees last year, Herb Pennock and Waite Hoyt, are not getting any better. Even the mighty Babe Ruth is not infallible.

However, the Yankees have the strongest club in the league, and therefore a good chance to repeat.

One out of every four, in fact!

SPEEDY NORWEGIANS LEAVING TO COMPETE AT OSLO, NORWAY

AMERICAN ENTRIES WILL ALSO LEAVE, GIVING UP HOPES OF RACING ON SOFT ICE

St. Moritz, Switzerland, Feb. 15.—(UP)—The likelihood of the remainder of the winter Olympics being called off grew today as the thaw—which had made the lake unusable—continued.

All of today's program was postponed when it was found the ice was unfit for further contests.

The speedy Norwegians, who have skated off with most of the honors in the winter games, announced last night that they would leave today to compete in an important meet at Oslo, Norway, on Sunday. The American entries will remain for the rest of the tournament here.

Switzerland's variable weather brought on a dispute over the 10,000 metres race yesterday which for a time threatened to mar the second annual winter sports games.

After six of the contestants had completed their races in the 10,000-metre event, the chairman of the skating arrangements committee, Henning Olsen of Norway, proposed to call off the event because of the soft ice which was rapidly melting under a warm sun.

At the time, Irving Jaffee of the United States had defeated the Norwegian champion, Bernt Evensen, and made the best time of the day, 18 minutes 36 5-10 seconds.

Gustavus T. Kirby, representing the American Olympic committee, protested against the cancellation of the race. The championship was given Jaffee later by the committee. However, it was decided that the 10,000-metre race will be held over before the completion of the games without points being awarded, provided the ice does not thaw too much.

Clas Thunberg, champion skater of Europe, won the 1,300-metre race for Finland, with Norwegians second, third and fourth, and Americans occupying the next four places.

The 50 kilometres ski race was won by Hedlund of Sweden, whose time was 4 hours, 32 minutes, 27 seconds. Forty-one contestants took part in the event.

St. Moritz, Switzerland, Feb. 15.—Abandoning hope that the rapidly melting ice of Lake Moritz would harden again in time to permit competition of the winter sports program, the American Olympic team announced today it would leave tomorrow.

The Norwegians departed this morning to attend an important meet at Oslo Sunday.

Today's skating program already had been postponed.

Thus the program seemed doomed. So far as it had gone the Norwegians had taken most of the honors.

A mix-up over the 10,000 metres speed skating race became complicated today when the international Olympic committee decided to annul all results in the race despite the protest of the American team.

The race should be re-skated if weather permitted, the committee held.

By the international decision, Irving Jaffee, United States, is deprived of the title of 10,000-metre champion that it was thought he would get. The committee decided to cancel the race entirely.

The American team officials have protested the decision.

LEGION, Y. M. C. A. TO SETTLE CITY BASKETBALL TITLE

FIRST OF SERIES OF THREE GAMES TO BE PLAYED AT HIGH SCHOOL FEB. 25

BRAINERD TEAMS DISPLAY FINE BRAND OF CAGE BALL, SEASON RECORDS SHOW

The independent cage title of Brainerd will be decided this year in a three game series between the American Legion five and the Y. M. C. A., the first to take place Saturday, February 25 at the high school gymnasium.

Keen rivalry will feature the contests, as well as an opportunity for the local fans to see Brainerd basketball stock in action.

Cage classics here this season have formed the major items of attraction in the sport field. New stars found their way into the arena. The two independent teams have brought honor upon themselves in home games and away from the city. The American Legion team has been a credit to the city in the Central Minnesota League. Both teams rank high as capable attractions.

Whitlock, Bill Heikkinen, Fitzharris, Marshall, Lowe, Heikkinen, and DeRocher have been the big guns in the success of the Legion five. Welsh, Hess, Fitzsimmons, Zakariasen, Beck and Nutting have formed the nucleus of the "Y" machine.

Exhibition of Strength Will Be Given By Sampson of Today at Finnish Hall February 16

There will be a concerted drive on the part of most of the American League clubs this year to beat the New York Yankees.

This, in itself, means that Miller Huggins' club, while easily the strongest baseball aggregation of modern times, cannot look forward to a walk-over in the 1928 race.

It is not so much that a majority of the other clubs in the league figure they can finish ahead of the Yanks. The Athletics might do so, and possibly Washington, but none of the others seem, at the moment, to have much chance to win the pennant.

What will count, however, will be the fact that the world's champions will be an obvious target all season long for each of their rivals to shoot at. Beating the Yankees at any time will be a feather in the cap of the successful club.

With seven teams shooting at the same mark, the path of Huggins, Ruth & Co., toward a third successive pennant is by no means strewn with roses. Pitchers who oppose the Yanks this year are likely to put a little something extra on the ball. Batsmen who face the New York pitchers are likely to be in there trying just a little bit harder for the winning hit.

This does not mean to hint that every club does not try to win every game, but baseball fans well know that no team can keep up a sustained spurt through a 154-game schedule. Certain clubs try harder to beat certain other clubs, usually for the purpose of improving their own standing in the league averages of games won and lost.

Connie Mack, whose Athletics once more look like the most dangerous of the contenders in the junior circuit, and Clark Griffith, whose Senators should be vastly improved by the addition of George Sisler, will be glad of the cooperation of the other clubs in the business of bringing the Yanks down from their high perch.

Miller Huggins needs another good left-handed pitcher. He knows better, however, than to try to acquire one from any of his American League rivals.

"You can't get players you need from other clubs in your league," said Huggins recently. He was explaining why he had gone to the Pacific Coast and spent a lot of money for Lary and Reese, to be delivered in 1929.

"By that time I may need a good infielder or I may want to make a swap with some club that does," continued the Yankee manager. "If I have a crack infielder for trading purposes, I can get somewhere in a deal with some American League club. But money won't buy the players you need, not when you need 'em."

In addition to the Athletics and the Senators, several other clubs may be looked upon as improved over their 1927 form. The Detroit Tigers should do better, so should the White Sox. Even the Boston Red Sox, while they may not climb out of the cellar, should win more ball games.

On the other hand, it is hard to see where the Yankees could be said to have improved. They have lost Dutch Reuther, and will try out old Stan Coveleskie in place of the star left hander. Lou Gehrig had an amazingly good year in 1927. He can hardly be expected to keep up the pace. Young Robertson from St. Paul may settle the third base problem, and he may not. The pitchers who won for the Yankees last year, Herb Pennock and Waite Hoyt, are not getting any better. Even the mighty Babe Ruth is not infallible.

However, the Yankees have the strongest club in the league, and therefore a good chance to repeat.

LUNDBORGS ADMIT BURNING LAKE DAM

Did so to Save Farm Land, Nursery Owners State in Municipal Court

DECISION COMES FEB. 21

Dam Constructed From 40 Lake Home Owners Subscriptions to Raise Level

Circumstances leading up to and the destruction of a dam located at the outlet of Cullen Lake on December 31 were cited yesterday afternoon in municipal court as witnesses for the state and the defense upheld and disclaimed the structure, respectively.

Theodore Lundborg and Joseph Lundborg, face the charge of arson in the third degree in regard to the burning of the dam. Judge J. H. Warner continued the case until February 21, at 2 p. m. The defendants stated they burned the dam to save their land.

The state, represented by County Attorney Arthur J. Sullivan, advanced the contention to the court that the case was that of dealing with an arson charge whereas the constitutional rights of the erection of a dam on the waters of Cullen Lake was another consideration, one which should not enter into the case at this time. Basil T. Heatn was attorney for the defendants.

A history of the case reveals that the dam was constructed of timber and lumber in an old ditch formerly used as a log drive into Gull Lake on the land now owned by Bridget E. Quinn and Emily McCabe. Construction of the dam took place in 1925 costing approximately $400 which was subscribed to by 40 summer cottage owners on the lake who desired higher water levels for the lake for boating and fishing purposes. Each land owner subscribed $10 to $15 apiece.

Lundborgs, operatives of a nursery farm, contended that the dam caused an overflow of their land.

The brothers were accused of burning the dam on the evening of December 31, 1927. They are alleged to have piled pitchwood on top of the structure and setting fire to it after putting 25 gallons of kerosine on top. Ice and water prevented the burning of the dam completely and to further impair the dam, the plaintiffs claim, the Lundborgs sawed the timber and split the lumber.

The court room was filled by interested parties from Brainerd and Cullen Lake residents.

KAZOO SYMPHONY TO GET SPOTLIGHT

First and Second Grade Pupils Prepare for Harrison P. T. A. Attraction

AT B. H. S. MARCH 2

Over 125 Students of Harrison School to Take Part in Interesting Program

A seven year old boy director and 18 enthusiastic boys and girls of the first and second grades of the Harrison school all of about the same age will make their first public appearance at a program to be presented at the Brainerd high school auditorium, Friday evening, March 2, sponsored by the Harrison P. T. A

The youthful symphony has been organized from Miss Milena Vanasek's classes and will appear on the bulletin as the Jolly Red Caps orchestra. Not one of the members knows a note of music but all have ambitions of becoming noted musicans some day.

Kazoos, combs, mouth organs, horns, triangles, tambourines and drums will be the instruments used in the presentation of a varied program.

Charles Dunnell, first grade pupil and director of the orchestra will play selections on the saw.

The personnel of the orchestra follows:

Kazoos, Dorothy Towers, Olivia Olson, Yvonne Loney, and Mildred Olson; combs, Margaret Olson, Maurice Potter, Leora Kilbourn, Leo Mustonen, Emma Anderson, and Gaylord Nylund; mouth organs, Irja Perantie, Milton Peterson; horns, Neoma Newman; triangle, Wanda Mattson; tambourine, Daisy Junteven; drums, James Hill, David Karlson, and Clyde Nelson.

An added attraction will be little Melvin Dybvick, Signe Oravala and Maurice Bakkila who do a clog dance in perfect time with the music when the Jolly Red Caps play "Hi Diddle, Diddle."

Folk dances and chorus numbers by upper grade students of the school will be presented under the direction of Miss Emily Mraz, teacher. Miss Milena Vanasek will have charge of the part supplied by the Jolly Red Caps and other first and second grade numbers. More than 125 children will take part.

Included in the program will be the work of Henry Gordien, magician, of Minneapolis.

Proceeds of the program will be used by the Harrison P. T. A. for playground and other school purposes.

Present Interesting Program for P. T. A.; Committee Serves Oyster Stew

VOTE WELFARE BOARD $25

Assistant Attorney General Walter F. Wieland is Principal Speaker

Dad's night at the Whittier P. T. A. meeting last night was a decided success. Many men were present and a strong vein of humor prevailed throughout the meeting. The presiding officers for the evening were men and they afforded much amusement in their manner of handling the association affairs.

The program they arranged was excellent throughout. Marion Newman played two piano solos, "Will-o'-the-Wisp" by Jungmann and "Knights Rupert" by Schumann. James Wieland sang "My Buddie" and Dr. G. I. Badeaux sang "The Trumpeter" and "Where My Caravan Has Rested." Mrs. W. F. Wieland accompanied both of them.

The chief speaker of the evening was Assistant Attorney General Walter F. Wieland whose main thought was the unconscious influence that parents' deeds and actions have upon their children.

John Holvick gave two humorous readings in dialect. Dr. A. K. Cohen explained Founders' Day which commemorates the beginning of the P. T. A. The audience then sang "My Tribute," the National Founders' Day hymn.

It was voted to contribute one dollar to the Founders' Day fund and twenty-five dollars to the child welfare board.

A committee of Miss Elizabeth Walsh and Mrs. M. W. Richards was appointed to arrange the P. T. A. book shelf in the Public Library.

The lunch committee was composed of Messrs. A. L. Alexander, J. H. Kinney, M. W. Pierce, J. F. Cibuzar, J. E. Jackson, and Frank Hall. The oyster stew served was an unexpected treat.

KAZOO SYMPHONY TO GET SPOTLIGHT

AT B. H. S. MARCH 2

Over 125 Students of Harrison School to Take Part in Interesting Program

A seven year old boy director and 18 enthusiastic boys and girls of the first and second grades of the Harrison school all of about the same age will make their first public appearance at a program to be presented at the Brainerd high school auditorium, Friday evening, March 2, sponsored by the Harrison P. T. A.

The youthful symphony has been organized from Miss Milena Vanasek's classes and will appear on the bulletin as the Jolly Red Caps orchestra. Not one of the members knows a note of music but all have ambitions of becoming noted musicans some day.

Kazoos, combs, mouth organs, horns, triangles, tambourines and drums will be the instruments used in the presentation of a varied program.

Charles Dunnell, first grade pupil and director of the orchestra will play selections on the saw.

The personnel of the orchestra follows:

Kazoos, Dorothy Towers, Olivia Olson, Yvonne Loney, and Mildred Olson; combs, Margaret Olson, Maurice Potter, Leora Kilbourn, Leo Mustonen, Emma Anderson, and Gaylord Nylund; mouth organs, Irja Perantie, Milton Peterson; horns, Neoma Newman; triangle, Wanda Mattson; tambourine, Daisy Juntteven; drums, James Hill, David Karlson, and Clyde Nelson.

An added attraction will be little Melvin Dybvick, Signe Oravala and Maurice Bakkila who do a clog dance in perfect time with the music when the Jolly Red Caps play "Hi Diddle, Diddle."

Folk dances and chorus numbers by upper grade students of the school will be presented under the direction of Miss Emily Mraz, teacher. Miss Milena Vanasek will have charge of the part supplied by the Jolly Red Caps and other first and second grade numbers. More than 125 children will take part.

Included in the program will be the work of Henry Gordien, magician, of Minneapolis.

Proceeds of the program will be used by the Harrison P. T. A. for playground and other school purposes.

WHITTIER DADS ARE ADMIRABLE HOSTS

VOTE WELFARE BOARD $25

Assistant Attorney General Walter F. Wieland is Principal Speaker

Dad's night at the Whittier P. T. A. meeting last night was a decided success. Many men were present and a strong vein of humor prevailed throughout the meeting. The presiding officers for the evening were men and they afforded much amusement in their manner of handling the association affairs.

The program they arranged was excellent throughout. Marion Newman played two piano solos, "Will-o'-the-Wisp" by Jungmann and "Knights Rupert" by Schumann. James Wieland sang "My Buddie" and Dr. G. I. Badeaux sang "The Trumpeter" and "Where My Caravan Has Rested." Mrs. W. F. Wieland accompanied both of them.

The chief speaker of the evening was Assistant Attorney General Walter F. Wieland whose main thought was the unconscious influence that parents' deeds and actions have upon their children.

John Holvick gave two humorous readings in dialect. Dr. A. K. Cohen explained Founders' Day which commemorates the beginning of the P. T. A. The audience then sang "My Tribute," the National Founders' Day hymn.

It was voted to contribute one dollar to the Founders' Day fund and twenty-five dollars to the child welfare board.

A committee of Miss Elizabeth Walsh and Mrs. M. W. Richards was appointed to arrange the P. T. A. book shelf in the Public Library.

The lunch committee was composed of Messrs. A. L. Alexander, J. H. Kinney, M. W. Pierce, J. F. Cibuzar, J. E. Jackson, and Frank Hall. The oyster stew served was an unexpected treat.

Dolores Costello in "OLD SAN FRANCISCO" is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

The broad acres of Don Hernandez Vasquez and his beautiful granddaughter Dolores are coveted by Buckwell, San Francisco boss. His lawyer, Brandon, fails to induce Vasquez to sell. Brandon's nephew, Terry, falls in love with Dolores. Buckwell plans to void Vasquez land grant. Terry warns Vasquez and offers aid. Vasquez won't listen and tells him Dolores must marry young Spaniard. Heartbroken, Terry leaves without seeing Dolores and tries to forget her by a wild night along Barbary Coast. Dolores is hurt by Terry's action, but swallows pride and seeks his aid in saving ranch. She finds him on drunken party and returns home disillusioned. Buckwell witnessed her visit and is intrigued.

And so on the next afternoon it was two objects, the thought of a grafting profit—through attainment of the property, by purchase or otherwise—and a keen desire to meet Dolores, the lovely and spirited belle of the hacienda; that brought him, immaculately dressed as usual, to the gates of the old Vasquez estate.

As he sauntered towards the ruins of the old mission his eyes lighted with satisfaction as they beheld the rolling hills and broad acres on either side. This valuable property would soon be his; other speculators wanted it but he would be the lucky one. Over the chapel door, moss covered and half obliterated, his roving eye caught the Vasquez crest and motto, "A Vasquez avenges a Vasquez," and his lips curled contemptuously at this symbol of useless sentiment and emotion.

Turning to go toward the house, he stopped abruptly. In the distance he noticed Dolores and her grandfather coming toward the mission. Vasquez wore a shawl and leaned heavily on his cane as Dolores helped him along. Buckwell's wily brain was seized with an idea. Hastily crunching beneath the heel of his boot the cigar he had been puffing so contently, he slipped into the mission and waited for them to approach.

Falling on his knees he assumed an attitude of devout worship.

The old man walked slowly. The grief and trouble of the last two days had aged him considerably. The sight of his broad acres seemed to torture him by their association with the past. He shook his head sadly as he walked.

Dolores was silent and grave, too. The disillusionment and horrible memories of the previous night lay heavily on her mind. She sighed in remembrance and thanked heaven that her grandfather had no inkling of where she had been.

As Buckwell sensed them passing the mission door he hastily advanced to the altar and falling to his knees assumed an attitude of devout worship. Keenly alert to each round of their footsteps he was fully aware that he had been discovered. Silently he waited with bowed head as they drew near and stopped just behind him. Then rising, apparently from prayer, as if in ignorance of their presence, he started as he saw them watching him curiously.

"I trust you will pardon this intrusion," he said apologetically, bowing low, "but I could not resist a prayer in this ancient sanctuary. It seems so like a breath from the sacred past."

Vasquez nodded warmly at this appreciation of his beloved mission.

Smiling first at him and then at Dolores, Buckwell continued, "I hope, with your permission, I may come again and often," he paused, waiting for the effect of his words.

The old man's smile faded and was replaced with a look of deep sadness. He glanced fondly about before replying, "I am afraid this may be your last visit—grafting politicians from the city threaten to seize our estate—and these old walls will be crushed under the merciless wheels of progress."

Buckwell stared from one to the other in amazement. His indignation was superb.

"Do you mean to say that they threaten to demolish this glorious monument to the very traditions that made our country what it is?" He paused and looked at Dolores as if to get her confirmation to her Grandfather's statement.

She nodded in agreement, her eyes shining in response to his words. "They threaten to declare invalid the old Spanish grant under which our ancestors held this land for more than one hundred years," she supplied with indignation.

Buckwell looked at her earnestly and sympathetically, then placing his hand gently on Vasquez's arm he said, "I, myself, am not without some influence in the city. If I can find out who is behind this outrage, I promise—for the sake of what this old mission represents—that I will save your estate."

The stranger's manner and words gave them new courage and Dolores ventured to say, "You seem to have come in answer to a wish—I threw a rose into the wishing well this morning and wished that someone true and fine would be sent to help us."

"No desire of yours should ever go ungratified," he complimented with just the right amount of mature and distant dignity. "I trust I may have the privilege of serving you often."

Dolores looked at her Grandfather and her eyes signalled "Isn't he nice!" His answered "Yes, my child, he is kind."

How cruel it was that they should have been so deluded and their faith so played with by the very man who was causing all the heartache and worry!

"We would appreciate anything you can do—I am at a loss as to what our next step should be," volunteered Vasquez, pitifully.

"In order to understand the situation," said Buckwell, assuming a more businesslike air, "I would like to examine your grant—merely to see if it was properly filed after the American Occupation."

"Certainly, Senor," acquiesced Vasquez, eager to do all in his power to assist, "come into the house and we can go into the matter thoroughly." With a sweeping gesture he indicated the way, but the strain of worry and excitement had drained his strength. Tottering uncertainly, he almost fell.

"Oh, Grandfather!" cried Dolores, steadying him with one arm around his waist.

"I—am all right—now!" he gasped, but one hand fluttered at his heart and Dolores knew he was just being brave.

"Let's sit down," she suggested cheerfully.

"No, No!" the old man insisted. "I want to get this matter settled as soon as possible," and he continued along the path with dragging feet.

Dolores exchanged a worried look with Buckwell behind her Grandfather's back and they moved cautiously along on either side, ready to catch him if he need assistance.

When they finally reached the living room Vasquez sank wearily into a great armed chair and closed his eyes. "Dolores," he called, unaware that she was kneeling by his side until she covered his nervous hands with hers. "Ah, yes, my child, bring the strong box in—you know where it is."

"Yes, Grandfather, dear," and she rose quickly to do his bidding.

In a moment she returned to the room carrying a handsomely carved box of Spanish design. Pausing before old Vasquez for instructions she found that he was asleep.

"I hate to waken him," she whispered across the intervening space to Buckwell, "he is so exhausted."

"Yet it may be disastrous to lose more time," supplied Buckwell craftily, in sotto voice.

"Couldn't you look at the papers without Grandfather?" asked Dolores, innocently. "I know how to open the box."

"Yes, I suppose I could," admitted Buckwell with apparent reluctance. But he had reached Dolores's side at the table before she opened the box and, as if he had devoted enough time to being polite he reached in and took out the grant papers.

"Aren't they perfectly legal?" inquired Dolores, waiting anxiously for his opinion, as he hastily scanned each sheet.

Buckewll laughed, softly to keep from waking Vasquez. "I am not expert enough in such matters to tell, but I shall be very happy to have my lawyer go over them for you."

"It does not seem right to put you to so much trouble." Dolores had a habit of talking with her eyes as well as her lips, and Buckwell found it diverting to watch her. It was a new role for him to play protector to a lovely damsel in distress and he enjoyed it to the utmost.

MAJOR LEAGUES TO FURTHER BASEBALL SPORT

TO MOLD BOYS OF AMERICA INTO CAPABLE BASEBALL PLAYERS

VOTE $50,000 TO FINANCE AMERICAN LEGION BOYS TOURNAMENT

By BERT M. DEMBY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Chicago, Feb. 15. — (U.P.)—The major leagues have started their long discussed campaign to mold the boys of America into capable baseball players.

First definite action along this line was taken here yesterday when the advisory council of the American and National leagues voted to contribute $50,000 to finance the American Legion's proposed national boys' baseball tournament in which 100,000 youths are expected to participate.

The action came as a climax to several year's discussion which has centered around proposed plans to furnish the majors with a larger crop of rookies each year.

Baseball men are agreed that the demand for good ball players now is far greater than the supply. As confirmation of their views they point to the rookie crops of the past few years, which have brought few star ball players into the big leagues, despite liberal spending by major magnates.

The Legion's plan was expected to revive youthful interest in baseball. It has been pointed out that the popularity of other sports celebrites has caused boys to turn away from baseball, a sport which once took most of their idle time.

Eligibility for competition in the Legion's national tournament will be limited to boys who have not passed their seventeenth birthday.

Action of the two major leagues was taken at a meeting before Judge Kenesaw M. Landis, commissioner of baseball, President John Heydler, of the national league, and E. S. Barnard, president of the American league, attended.

With the support of the major leagues the Legion plans to divide the nation into ten regions, six in the east and four in the west. Boys' teams will be formed under the direction of the 11,000 individual Legion posts.

The teams first will compete in districts within their own states, later meeting to select a state champion.

State winners then will participate in ten regional championships. Eastern and western champions will be selected next the winners will meet in the final games, to be known as the "Little World Series."

Dan Sowers, of Indianapolis, representing the Legion, said the Legion had considered the plan for two years.

The decision of the major leagues advisory council was accompanied by the following announcement:

"Sandlot baseball is the foundation and backbone of the game. The major leagues realize that the promotion and the fostering of baseball with boys between 14 and 17 years of age means the continued growth and permanency of the game of baseball."

Judge Landis declared the plan appeared to be thoroughly practical.

"This competitive plan among amateurs," Landis said, "has reached further and embraces more than any plan presented to organized baseball in many a day."

Barnard and Heydler were equally enthusiastic in praising the Legion's proposal.

It is planned to start the regional tournaments late in July in order that the national tournament may be completed before September 10.

WILLMAR PITCHER TO BRAINERD

MARLIN DENZER, OF WOOLWORTH'S, WAS STAR HURLER OF THAT CITY'S TEAM

Marlin Denzer, who has been employed at the local F. W. Woolworth store, as assistant manager since it opened last summer, has been transferred to the F. W. Woolworth store at Brainerd, where he will work in a like manner. He left today for that place.

During the year and a half that he has lived in this city, Marlin has made many friends, all who regret very much to see him go. Marley will be greatly missed on the Willmar baseball team, where he has held down the pitching honors with great credit for the past two years. Last year he lost but three out of 21 games that he hurled. All his friends both in this city and in Cokato, where he formerly lived, hope that he will make good at Brainerd. — Willmar Daily Tribune.

Sage Tea Turns Gray Hair Dark
By SHIRLEY BLAKE

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray or streaked, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.
Don't bother to prepare the mixture. You can get this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, for only 75 cents, all ready for use. It is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color and lustre of your hair.
Everybody uses "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustrous.

Dolores Costello in "OLD SAN FRANCISCO" is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

The broad acres of Don Hernandez Vasquez and his beautiful granddaughter Dolores are coveted by Buckwell, San Francisco boss. His lawyer, Brandon, fails to induce Vasquez to sell. Brandon's nephew, Terry, falls in love with Dolores. Buckwell plans to void Vasquez land grant. Terry warns Vasquez and offers aid. Vasquez won't listen and tells him Dolores must marry young Spaniard. Heartbroken, Terry leaves without seeing Dolores and tries to forget her by a wild night along Barbary Coast. Dolores is hurt by Terry's action, but swallows pride and seeks his aid in saving ranch. She finds him on drunken party and returns home disillusioned. Buckwell witnessed her visit and is intrigued.

And so on the next afternoon it was two objects, the thought of a grafting profit—through attainment of the property, by purchase or otherwise—and a keen desire to meet Dolores, the lovely and spirited belle of the hacienda; that brought him, immaculately dressed as usual, to the gates of the old Vasquez estate.

As he sauntered towards the ruins of the old mission his eyes lighted with satisfaction as they beheld the rolling hills and broad acres on either side. This valuable property would soon be his; other speculators wanted it but he would be the lucky one. Over the chapel door, moss covered and half obliterated, his roving eye caught the Vasquez crest and motto, "A Vasquez avenges a Vasquez," and his lips curled contemptuously at this symbol of useless sentiment and emotion.

Turning to go toward the house, he stopped abruptly. In the distance

Falling on his knees he assumed an attitude of devout worship.

he noticed Dolores and her grandfather coming toward the mission. Vasquez wore a shawl and leaned heavily on his cane as Dolores helped him along. Buckwell's wily brain was seized with an idea. Hastily crunching beneath the heel of his boot the cigar he had been puffing so contently, he slipped into the mission and waited for them to approach.

The old man walked slowly. The grief and trouble of the last two days had aged him considerably. The sight of his broad acres seemed to torture him by their association with the past. He shook his head sadly as he walked.

Dolores was silent and grave, too. The disillusionment and horrible memories of the previous night lay heavily on her mind. She sighed in remembrance and thanked heaven that her grandfather had no inkling of where she had been.

As Buckwell sensed them passing the mission door he hastily advanced to the altar and falling to his knees assumed an attitude of devout worship. Keenly alert to each round of their footsteps he was fully aware that he had been discovered. Silently he waited with bowed head as they drew near and stopped just behind him. Then rising, apparently from prayer, as if in ignorance of their presence, he started as he saw them watching him curiously.

"I trust you will pardon this intrusion," he said apologetically, bowing low, "but I could not resist a prayer in this ancient sanctuary. It seems so like a breath from the sacred past."

Vasquez nodded warmly at this appreciation of his beloved mission.

Smiling first at him and then at Dolores, Buckwell continued, "I hope, with your permission, I may come again and often," he paused, waiting for the effect of his words.

The old man's smile faded and was replaced with a look of deep sadness. He glanced fondly about before replying, "I am afraid this may be your last visit—grafting politicians from the city threaten to seize our estate—and these old walls will be crushed under the merciless wheels of progress."

Buckwell stared from one to the other in amazement. His indignation was superb.

"Do you mean to say that they threaten to demolish this glorious monument to the very traditions that made our country what it is?" He paused and looked at Dolores as if to get her confirmation to her Grandfather's statement.

She nodded in agreement, her eyes shining in response to his words. "They threaten to declare invalid the old Spanish grant under which our ancestors held this land for more than one hundred years," she supplied with indignation.

Buckwell looked at her earnestly and sympathetically, then placing his hand gently on Vasquez's arm he said, "I, myself, am not without some influence in the city. If I can find out who is behind this outrage, I promise—for the sake of what this old mission represents—that I will save your estate."

The stranger's manner and words gave them new courage and Dolores ventured to say, "You seem to have come in answer to a wish—I threw a rose into the wishing well this morning and wished that someone true and fine would be sent to help us."

"No desire of yours should ever go ungratified," he complimented with just the right amount of mature and distant dignity. "I trust I may have the privilege of serving you often."

Dolores looked at her Grandfather and her eyes signalled "Isn't he nice!" His answered "Yes, my child, he is kind."

How cruel it was that they should have been so deluded and their faith so played with by the very man who was causing all the heartache and worry!

"We would appreciate anything you can do—I am at a loss as to what our next step should be," volunteered Vasquez, pitifully.

"In order to understand the situation," said Buckwell, assuming a more businesslike air, "I would like to examine your grant—merely to see if it was properly filed after the American Occupation."

"Certainly, Senor," acquiesced Vasquez, eager to do all in his power to assist, "come into the house and we can go into the matter thoroughly." With a sweeping gesture he indicated the way, but the strain of worry and excitement had drained his strength. Tottering uncertainly, he almost fell.

"Oh, Grandfather!" cried Dolores, steadying him with one arm around his waist.

"I—am all right—now!" he gasped, but one hand fluttered at his heart and Dolores knew he was just being brave.

"Let's sit down," she suggested cheerfully.

"No, No!" the old man insisted, "I want to get this matter settled as soon as possible," and he continued along the path with dragging feet.

Dolores exchanged a worried look with Buckwell behind her Grandfather's back and they moved cautiously along on either side, ready to catch him if he need assistance.

When they finally reached the living room Vasquez sank wearily into a great armed chair and closed his eyes. "Dolores," he called, unaware that she was kneeling by his side until she covered his nervous hands with hers. "Ah, yes, my child, bring the strong box in—you know where it is."

"Yes, Grandfather, dear," and she rose quickly to do his bidding.

In a moment she returned to the room carrying a handsomely carved box of Spanish design. Pausing before old Vasquez for instructions she found that he was asleep.

"I hate to waken him," she whispered across the intervening space to Buckwell, "he is so exhausted."

"Yet it may be disastrous to lose more time," supplied Buckwell craftily, in sotto voice.

"Couldn't you look at the papers without Grandfather?" asked Dolores, innocently. "I know how to open the box."

"Yes, I suppose I could," admitted Buckwell with apparent reluctance. But he had reached Dolores's side at the table before she opened the box and, as if he had devoted enough time to being polite he reached in and took out the grant papers.

"Aren't they perfectly legal?" inquired Dolores, waiting anxiously for his opinion, as he hastily scanned each sheet.

Buckewll laughed, softly to keep from waking Vasquez. "I am not expert enough in such matters to tell, but I shall be very happy to have my lawyer go over them for you."

"It does not seem right to put you to so much trouble." Dolores had a habit of talking with her eyes as well as her lips, and Buckwell found it diverting to watch her. It was a new role for him to play protector to a lovely damsel in distress and he enjoyed it to the utmost.

MAJOR LEAGUES TO FURTHER BASEBALL SPORT

TO MOLD BOYS OF AMERICA INTO CAPABLE BASEBALL PLAYERS

VOTE $50,000 TO FINANCE AMERICAN LEGION BOYS TOURNAMENT

By BERT M. DEMBY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Chicago, Feb. 15. — (UP)—The major leagues have started their long discussed campaign to mold the boys of America into capable baseball players.

First definite action along this line was taken here yesterday when the advisory council of the American and National leagues voted to contribute $50,000 to finance the American Legion's proposed national boys' baseball tournament in which 100,000 youths are expected to participate.

The action came as a climax to several year's discussion which has centered around proposed plans to furnish the majors with a larger crop of rookies each year.

Baseball men are agreed that the demand for good ball players now is far greater than the supply. As confirmation of their views they point to the rookie crops of the past few years, which have brought few star ball players into the big leagues, despite liberal spending by major magnates.

The Legion's plan was expected to revive youthful interest in baseball. It has been pointed out that the popularity of other sports celebrites has caused boys to turn away from baseball, a sport which once took most of their idle time.

Eligibility for competition in the Legion's national tournament will be limited to boys who have not passed their seventeenth birthday.

Action of the two major leagues was taken at a meeting before Judge Kenesaw M. Landis, commissioner of baseball, President John Heydler, of the national league, and E. S. Barnard, president of the American league, attended.

With the support of the major leagues the Legion plans to divide the nation into ten regions, six in the east and four in the west. Boys' teams will be formed under the direction of the 11,000 individual Legion posts.

The teams first will compete in districts within their own states, later meeting to select a state champion.

State winners then will participate in ten regional championships. Eastern and western champions will be selected next the winners will meet in the final games, to be known as the "Little World Series."

Dan Sowers, of Indianapolis, representing the Legion, said the Legion had considered the plan for two years.

The decision of the major leagues advisory council was accompanied by the following announcement:

"Sandlot baseball is the foundation and backbone of the game. The major leagues realize that the promotion and the fostering of baseball with boys between 14 and 17 years of age means the continued growth and permanency of the game of baseball."

Judge Landis declared the plan appeared to be thoroughly practical.

"This competitive plan among amateurs," Landis said, "has reached further and embraces more than any plan presented to organized baseball in many a day."

Barnard and Heydler were equally enthusiastic in praising the Legion's proposal.

It is planned to start the regional tournaments late in July in order that the national tournament may be completed before September 10.

Regional divisions of the tournament include: No. 5—Minnesota, Iowa, Wisconsin and Michigan.

Dean Traded to Louisville

Chicago—Wayland Dean, Chicago Cubs pitcher, has been traded to Louisville of the American association league in exchange for Ed Holley, Louisville hurler, President William Veeck announced.

SCHOOLBOY BADLY INJURED IN FIST FIGHT

Physicians doubted today whether he would recover from a fractured skull.

WILLMAR PITCHER TO BRAINERD

MARLIN DENZER, OF WOOLWORTH'S, WAS STAR HURLER OF THAT CITY'S TEAM

Marlin Denzer, who has been employed at the local F. W. Woolworth store, as assistant manager since it opened last summer, has been transferred to the F. W. Woolworth store at Brainerd, where he will work in a like manner. He left today for that place.

During the year and a half that he has lived in this city, Marlin has made many friends, all who regret very much to see him go. Marley will be greatly missed on the Willmar baseball team, where he has held down the pitching honors with great credit for the past two years. Last year he lost but three out of 21 games that he hurled. All his friends both in this city and in Cokato, where he formerly lived, hope that he will make good at Brainerd. — Willmar Daily Tribune.

Sage Tea Turns Gray Hair Dark
By SHIRLEY BLAKE

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray or streaked, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.
Don't bother to prepare the mixture. You can get this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, for only 75 cents, all ready for use. It is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color and lustre of your hair.
Everybody uses "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustrous.
